DESCRIPTION

Module::CoreList contains the hash of hashes %Module::CoreList::version, that is keyed on perl version as indicated in $. The second level hash is module => version pairs.

Note, it is possible for the version of a module to be unspecified, whereby the value is undef, so use exists $version{$foo}{$bar} if that's what you're testing for.

It also contains %Module::CoreList::released hash, which has ISO formatted versions of the release dates, as gleaned from perlhists.

New, in 1.96 is also the %Module::CoreList::families hash, which clusters known perl releases by their major versions.

In 2.01 %Module::CoreList::patchlevel contains the branch and patchlevel corresponding to the specified perl version in the Perforce repository where the perl sources are kept.

Starting with 2.10, the special module name `Unicode` refers to the version of the Unicode Character Database bundled with Perl.

Since 2.11, Module::CoreList::first_release() returns the first release in the order of perl version numbers. If you want to get the earliest perl release instead, use Module::CoreList::first_release_by_date().
